

Free Love: Leo and His Model Girlfriend

by Marc Malkin

Jan. 12, 2007 2:23 PM

Print

Ready to indulge your (gifting) suite tooth?

Leo DiCaprio and his Israeli girlfriend and model, Bar Refaeli, hit the GBK Productions Golden Globes gifting suite yesterday and apparently "went really nuts over the Ford Escape Hybrid," an onlooker reports.

DiCaprio not only got a free lease for the car for himself, he made sure Refaeli did, too. "Leo asked for one for Bar so she would have something to drive when she is in town from Israel," an onlooker reports. "He was so sweet with her. He wanted to make sure she got gifts, too."

DiCaprio, a double Golden Globe nominee for The Departed and Blood Diamond, picked out a Vidalia Grill, a Spaulding Custom NBA backboard, a gift certificate to the Ikon Art Studio, a Barbar hair dryer and a Scene It? DVD game. He also munched on O'Coco's organic baked chocolate crisps. He picked out a Pop Art toaster for his niece and an Elezar handbag for his mom.

Of course, Refaeli did quite well, too. She scooped up an orange minidress from Heidi Merrick, some Bodyography cosmetics, a pair of Isaac Mizrahi pumps and a Bella Bear made from—get this!—recycled vintage fur.

While DiCaprio made off with some pricey products, GBK Productions—like other gift suite organizers—has added a charitable component to all this swag. GBK is making donations to Global Green, Padres Contra El Cáncer, Hollywood Habitat for Humanity, Educating Young Minds and AmberWatch Foundation.

Leo isn't the only boldface name scooping up swag this weekend. Look out for more of my reports this coming weekend on other freebie-lovin' celebs.